Sneaky Snake

[...] Moshe made a snake of copper and placed it on the pole; so it was that if a snake bit a man he would stare at the copper snake and live (21:9).

week's parsha recounts attack Hashem and Moshe,

Hashem sends incredibly venomous snakes to attack Bnei Yisroel and many die. Almost immediately, the people go to Moshe, beg his forgiveness, and ask him to pray for them. Moshe acquiesces Moshe that he should fashion a snake and place it on a pole and that those had been bitten and would stare at the and subjected their hearts to their Father in heaven, they would be cured and if not they would waste away.

There is also a similar story at the end of Parshas Beshalach: when the Amalekites came to attack Bnei Yisroel Moshe lifted his hands toward heaven and as long as a his hands were raised Bnei Yisroel were fascinating incident, one unlike any winning, and when his hands lowered other in the Torah: Bnei Yisroel are Bnei Yisroel faltered. Yet, if all Bnei exasperated about retracing their steps Yisroel needed was Moshe to lift his and subsequently moving further from hands towards heaven, why didn't he entering Eretz Yisroel. They begin to simply do the same here? Why did and Hashem instead tell him to fashion a complain bitterly about the manna and snake and have people stare at it to be lack of water. This in and of itself doesn't cured? Creating a snake that cures seem particularly unusual; after all Bnei seems contrary to our Torah values. In Yisroel tested Hashem's patience time fact, the very same snake that Moshe and time again while in the desert. What created was later called Nechushtan and makes this story unique is what happens used as idol worship in the time of King Ahaz (before being eventually destroyed and burned by the righteous King Hezkiah). Seemingly, Moshe could have accomplished the same result here by simply pointing his fingers heavenward once again.

right away, at which point Hashem tells The Torah uses a curious word to express the concept of "staring" at the snake: "Vehibit el Hanachash." Rashi (in who had been bitten can look at the his comments on Bereishis 15:5) explains snake and live. Moshe created the that the word yabit refers to looking snake, and so it was that anyone who downward. Hashem is expressing a profound lesson for Bnei Yisroel to copper snake would live. Rashi (ad loc) internalize. They are being asked to explains; could a snake (made by Moshe) examine the snake within themselves cause death or give life? Rather, as long the part of them that desires to be as Bnei Yisroel casted their eyes upward independent from Hashem. That is what it means to look down at the snake: examine this internal conflict and understand that it is causing a separation between the individual and Hashem. Once one chooses to sublimate the yetzer hora within, Hashem provides a cure for the snakes on the outside.

A Giant Debt

[...] Og, king of Bashan, went out against them, he and his entire people, to do battle in Edrei. Hashem said to Moshe, "Do not fear him, for into your hand I have given him [...]" (21:33-34).

the remarkable encounter between Avraham what had happened to Lot was Moshe Rabbeinu and Og, the giant-king of for his own selfish reasons. He desired to Bashan. Og had been one of the marry Sarah; one of the most beautiful "Nephilim" (those that fell - "fallen women to have ever lived, according to angels" see Rashi on Bereishis 6:4); a race the Gemara (Megillah 15a). Og hoped of giants from the time before the "great" that Avraham would feel impelled to enter flood." He was known as "the escapee" the war, and in the course of the fighting because he survived the destruction of the he would be killed; thereby clearing a path "great flood" (see Rashi on Bereishis for Og to be with Sarah. Thus, Og had very 14:13). The possuk tells us that Moshe selfish reasons for giving Avraham Avinu was worried about meeting Og in a war.

At first glance, this seems a little odd. Bnei one of the mightiest warriors in the world. almost 500 years prior Og had done a favor for Avraham Avinu. Moshe was afraid that the merit of this kindness to Avraham Avinu would stand for him and, perhaps, render him invulnerable.

What kindness had Og done for Avraham? In Parshas Lech Lecha (Bereishis 14:1-12), the Torah relates some of the details of the epic war that embroiled nine kingdoms. Four kings went to war against five kings and soundly defeated them and many other nations that were in their path. One of the nations that was utterly destroyed was the Rephaim, a nation of giants, and Og was the lone survivor ("fugitive"). In addition, one of the five kings who was defeated was the king of Sodom, where Avraham's nephew, Lot, resided. Og came to Avraham to inform him that his nephew had been taken captive by the four kings. This was the fact that Og had his own agenda doesn't kindness that Og did for Avraham Avinu, which had Moshe concerned about providing Avraham a service that he meeting Og in battle.

However, this is difficult to comprehend. Rashi (Bereishis 14:13) very clearly states

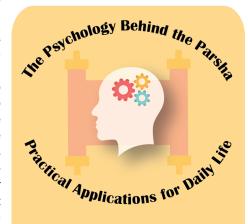

This week's parsha ends with the tale of that the reason Og came to inform news about his nephew - so how is this act considered such a great merit for him?

Yisroel had just soundly decimated Sichon Imagine for a moment that someone is king of Cheshbon, who had a reputation as attacked by a mugger and struck upon the head. Following this unfortunate event, Why was Moshe suddenly worried about the victim heads to the nearest hospital to fighting Og? Rashi (21:34) explains that be examined. The doctors decide to perform a CT scan of his head to be sure that there isn't any more extensive damage. Miraculously, the CT scan reveals that while there is no permanent damage from the mugger's blow, there is a tumor that is slowly growing inside the skull that must be removed. This tumor might have very likely killed this person and perhaps not have been caught in time had he not been mugged. Does this victim now owe a debt of gratitude to the mugger?

> Of course not. In the case of the mugger, the victim never wanted to suffer a severe blow to the head. That it, providentially, happened to work out is really just the hand of Hashem. However, in the case of Og, Avraham was well aware of risks he was taking by entering a war with the four kings. Yet, Avraham desired to have the information that Og was providing. The lessen the kindness to Avraham; Og was wanted. Doing a kindness for someone as great as Avraham Avinu was reason enough to give Moshe pause. Hashem therefore had to reassure him.

The Torah is teaching us a remarkable lesson in hakaras hatov, as well as in something most of us strive hard to avoid. We see from this story that we must feel indebted to someone who does us a kindness even if he has his own reason for doing it. Often, we work very hard to try to ascribe a motivation to a benefactor that would seem to paint them as selfserving, or in the very least as not totally altruistic. Naturally, we do this to lessen our feeling of obligation to this person. This is wrong. The Torah is teaching us that we must appreciate any kindness that is done for us, irrespective of the benefactor's motivation.
